

Roast HOGGMANN

In his recent landscape works, Roast Hoggmann captures moments of serenity experienced on runs and while traveling around California. Whether the instances depicted are from moments alone in nature or on trips with his family, they are occurrences of epiphany for the artist — a deep realization of power and beauty of environment. His paintings and drawings are meticulously crafted and pay homage to the long tradition of California Impressionism established along the west coast. The culmination of these elements results in works that mimic our experience in the natural world- paintings and drawings that move and breath and make the viewer want to go outside.
